

Cross Country Canada to Launch New Website in September 2011

Credit: Wanda Bogdane

Cross Country Canada is gearing up to launch a refreshed version of cccski.com this fall. Using feedback received from athletes, members, clubs and divisions from across the country, the organization is aiming to produce a website that retains the valuable components from the most current site originally built in 2006, while advancing the online functionality and interactivity.

"The vision behind the refresh is to offer site users a higher ease of navigation and searchability, in addition to a cleaner look with more streamlined content." said executive director Davin MacIntosh.

Though the site will be unveiled in September, updates will be ongoing until the start of the competition season. If during this time you encounter any issues, we appreciate your patience and encourage you to email us with the page of issue.

Thank you!